COMEDY @ BODDINGTON HALL, LEEDS, LS16 6PT STARTS 8:30pm

Wes Zaharuk

'Twin Peaks meets Cirque Du Soleil'
'Dementedly enjoyable... a joy.'
'A rib-ticking dive into the surreal.' Channel 4
'A madcap romp through comic insanity.'
Master of mayhem, prop lunatic Wes Zaharuk, takes audience on a joy-ride of frenzy machine-gun anarchic physical comedy routines and maniac physical audience interaction. Wes is easily one of the most exciting acts on the comedy circuit.

If you like to laugh out loud you won't want to miss this show.

Wes Zaharuk credits his comic roots to his parents. They made 'not listening' an Olympic event. As a child, his parents dressed him in wool pants that were incredibly itchy. Complain as he would, his words fell on deaf ears. When he developed a skin condition that looked like a large, all-dressed pizza, he was tested for allergies. It was found that he was allergic to wool. Through it all, Wes developed his desire to be heard — if only to reduce rash.

About the use of props, such as vacuums, whips, and blowers, in his performance Wes quips

‘Show business sometimes lures people who didn't get enough love early in life. I feel as a child I didn't get enough unsupervised time with power tools but who has perfect parents?’

Mundo Jazz

Mundo Jazz is the leader of a spoof World Music band w/ about peace, the environment, racial harmony and love.

It's unfortunate, then, that he knows absolutely nothing...

What can one say about a musician whose songs convey environmental degradation, the importance of racial harm of capitalism with subtlety and intelligence? One can say and Crazy Horse. Mundo Jazz, however, preaches peace with all the subtlety of a brick hitting butter, through his ridiculous dancing, thunderously crass poetry and catastrophic conversations with the Whitehouse.

A beautifully subtle satire on the likes of Bono and Bob G superb musical and comic improvisers, frequently creating veering off into spontaneous chaos. Worried about your c bother, you can buy one of theirs after the show...

“... a sort of live Latino Spinal Tap. Very, very, very funny
